1. Importance of media in Gender equality

Media can play a decisive role in Gender Equality. Mass communication in the form of Cinemas, advertisements, News, Social media, various platforms are being observed by all the People. As such a decisive role can be played by all these sources of communications. It is a very easy way of influencing the public. Now the onus on the media is very high and they have to play a responsible role and pass on messages for the benefit of society in large.

Importance of Female literacy

Female literacy is most important for the development of a nation. Mother is naturally the first teacher to any child. There is a lot of change in the attitude of a literate mother who can mould the future of a child and hence indirectly the society too. So right now our main aim should be to increase female literacy.

Prevention of Domestic violence

India over a long period of time has mainly been a male dominated society. Women are mostly supposed to listen to every necessity of the male and family. Even the mother-in-law thinks she has complete authority over the Daughter-in-law. The society is also leaning towards dowry related issues. All these are the main reasons for inciting domestic violence. In addition poverty and alcohol consumption too have become inciting factors for these evils.
