Professional skills are the traits and attributes which help you succeed in your career. Professional skills are transferable in that they are not specific to any one job. They help you succeed in any role whereas technical and specialised skills are specific to a job or profession. Soft skills, such as communication and time management, can also help professionals work with the people around them and help them manage tasks.

Skills that can help professionals improve their performance at work include communication, Leadership, Emotional Intelligence, Time – management, Adaptability, Problem Solving, Self – motivation, Confidence, etc,.

Digital literacy is the ability to navigate our digital world using reading, writing, technical skills, and critical thinking. It's using technology like a smart phone, PC, e-reader, and more to find, evaluate, and communicate information. With Microsoft Digital Literacy classes, you can gain skills needed to effectively explore the Internet. It helps to Learn how t to use devices, software, and the Internet to collaborate with others and discover, use, and create information.

Digital literacy can play a powerful role in helping people connect, learn, engage with their community, and create more promising futures. Simply reading articles online does not address digital literacy, so it is important for everyone to understand the variety of content and possibilities that are accessible online. This digital literacy course can help individuals gain the digital skills necessary to engage in a digital economy and improve livelihoods.

Project-based learning is a student-centred methodology that engages students in developing critical thinking through undertaking authentic, meaningful projects.

It is a teaching strategy that focuses on real-world problems and challenges using problem-solving, decision-making and investigative skills. It is increasingly being used across disciplines because of its capacity to engage students in developing self-directed learning skills.

This Session discusses the importance of lesson planning and the ways in which a lesson plan can improve teaching and learning and contribute to evaluating the impact of a lesson not only to the learners but the teacher as well.

Lesson planning refers to all features of designing effective learning activities, including creating instructional material, preparing engaging practical tasks, as well as planning assessment and evaluation.
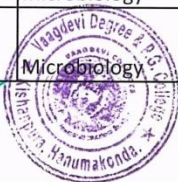

It thus focuses on the entire process of teaching and learning from structuring curricula and learning programs to assessing and feedback.

Professional development program on "Critical Thinking & Problem Solving "

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 28

Critical thinking is a habit where we observe our own thought process and find ways to improve it. By analyzing our thoughts, we can improve how efficiently we think, how intuitively we organize our thoughts and how often we recognize our biases. When we think critically, we can study arguments, analyze what evidence supports them and make a reasoned decision about whether the arguments are correct. Adopting critical thinking as a long-term practice can help us consider the perspectives of peers more often, become more honest about our mistakes and commit to the process of lifelong learning.

Problem-solving is a skill we can use to find solutions to challenges. We can use problem-solving when we want to understand the cause of issues in our personal and work life and organize a plan of action. Since we might use problem-solving when unexpected events happen, it often requires the ability to identify factors that influence these problems and the ability to improvise effective strategies that resolve them. By strengthening this skill, we might be able to find creative solutions more quickly, visualize problems more accurately and conduct research more effectively.

Number of Participants: 24

At the start of the pandemic of COVID-19, educational apps have seen a major expansion in the industry. Tailored experiences, improved engagement, ease of use anywhere and anytime are among a wave of advantages that these applications can provide to education. Using technology has no longer been a choice, but a requirement in today's world, so it's only natural that it has made its way into shaping the model of the education system environment.

Educational apps have made learning easy and accessible for people worldwide with just the click of a button.

The use of technology has become more common in classrooms, it has been improving the teaching methods for new generations. College students have also seen new applications to help them through college life. Most of the challenges these students face are when managing their time or for collaborating with diverse people. An incredibly competitive job market is among the biggest concerns for students, this is why many educational apps often offer courses or certifications that complement education in college.

There are different types of educational apps in the iOS App Store and Play Store, depending on each individual's topic of interest. From learning new languages, improving math or reading abilities and up to the time or task management, students are free to choose whatever application they see fit to their objectives.

Professional development program on "Effective Teaching Skills & Strategies"

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 28

Teaching is a profession that requires teachers to adapt from year to year and to new and different scenarios. To do so successfully to the benefit of their classrooms, there are countless strategies educators can use to create engaging lesson plans that accommodate students of all academic levels and learning styles.

In this session, we discussed different teaching strategies explored and used by teachers each day.

Effective teaching strategies comprise proven best practices in education that work in a variety of classroom environments. Many teachers may use multiple strategies to keep their students engaged throughout the academic year and test their knowledge more comprehensively. Other teachers may use only one or two strategies to guide their lesson plans and ensure that each student understands the information being taught.

What works well for one class may not be best of the next class, meaning teachers will continuously assess the effectiveness of a teacher strategy and make adjustments as needed. The most effective approach to implementing teaching strategies is to customize them to meet students' needs. Through this session teachers could find the right combination of teaching strategies that works best for their students.

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 24

Social-emotional learning is the process of developing the self-awareness, self-control, and interpersonal skills that are vital for school, college, work, and life success.

It is a methodology that helps students of all ages to better comprehend their emotions, to feel those emotions fully, and demonstrate empathy for others. These learned behaviors are then used to help students make positive, responsible decisions; create frameworks to achieve their goals, and build positive relationships with others

Administrative training program on "Role & Activities of Non-Teaching Staff In Administration"

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 27

Roles and responsibilities of Non – Teaching Staff discussed in the session include:

- Administrative roles - these roles aren't involved with direct student learning however they manage an effective running of the school in other ways.
  Student support - these roles can take place inside and outside of college. They are there to help students and parents with any issues they have.
- Specialist/technical staff - these roles can take place in the classroom and are there when more technical support is needed. For example, during an ICT lesson, a technician may be on hand to make sure it's carried out correctly.
- Teaching and learning support - these are roles that involve working in the classroom, either as the main teacher or as an assistant to help them.
- ICT technicians - responsibilities include monitoring all software within the school and being on hand to help solve any problems.
- Exam officers or also referred to as invigilators - monitoring any examinations by making sure they go ahead on time without any issues.
- Attendance officers - monitoring all attendance within the college and addressing any student who are showing low attendance.
- Site managers or caretakers - dealing with any maintenance issues of the college.
- Health and safety managers - making sure the college is safe, by ensuring correct plans and legislation, that are in line with health and safety requirements.

Administrative training program on "Report Preparation"

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 27

A report is a nonfiction account that presents and/or summarizes the facts about a particular event, topic, or issue.

Reports, in particular, tend to feature these types of content:

- Details of an event or situation

- The consequences or ongoing effect of an event or situation

- Evaluation of statistical data or analytics

- Interpretations from the information in the report

- Predictions or recommendations based on the information in the report

- How the information relates to other events or reports

Before writing a final report, a rough draft is made so that the report's quality can be maintained or improved. Based on officials comments, the rough draft is revised by including the related information and excluding any irrelevant data or information. Also, any grammatical or spelling mistakes can be identified in this so that the report can be corrected. In the final stage, the report is presented by the reporter in easy and simple language which is shaped in the form of the presentation.

Computer technology is developing at a rapid rate, and its development direction is no longer limited to the technology industry, and it has been widely used in various fields. Computer technology has also been introduced into the administrative management of colleges, which not only provides a new working mode for the implementation of the administrative management of colleges, but also helps to improve the level of administrative management of colleges, so that it can provide better services for the development of colleges. Therefore, the session analyzes the application of computer technology in administrative management, aiming to optimize the quality of college administrative management and promote the development of college education.

The Internet is a collection of computers around the world connected to each other via a high speed series of networks. The Internet becomes the main method in exchanging cultures and transferring knowledge between people. The Internet is a vast network that connects computers all over the world. Through the Internet, people can share information and communicate from anywhere with an Internet connection.

Computer courses are essential for a successful career in today's competitive world. The session includes the basics that are required to learn for general purposes.

Microsoft Office is perhaps the most popular application across the world. Microsoft Office, also known as MS office, is typically a tool created by Bill Gate's Microsoft Corporation for managing official tasks. MS office consists of a variety of applications including Word, Excel, PowerPoint, Outlook, OneNote, Skype, and Calendar. But Word, Excel, and PowerPoint are the most favorite applications for computer users for creating documents, presentations, and spreadsheets.

After completing the session participants will be able to handle all types of official jobs on a computer efficiently.

Administrative training program on "Record Keeping & Document Maintenance"

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 32

Records management is maintaining records, including classifying, storing, securing, and preserving, which protects fragile historical records and assures permanent records are accessible and available to comprehend and to be examined by students and scholars for years in the future. Records and document management are the essential pillars of the nation's intellectual consciousness. Therefore, we have organized this program with which, we could expect some change for the betterment in this direction.

From 25/04/2023 To 29/04/2023.

Administrative training program on "Gender Justice & Work Place Security"

Venue: Auditorium, MBA Block
Number of Participants: 27

Discussions and considerations about gender justice have taken place on a national and worldwide scale. Due to the growing number of women participating in all spheres of life, especially the workforce, and the dismantling of gender-based social, political, and religious obstacles, the topic has gained prominence and is being discussed at all levels. In addition to being housewives, women now play a variety of positions in the workforce. They are employed as senior executives in multinational corporations, as lawmakers in state and federal legislatures, as teachers in the field of education, etc. The increased participation of women has been made possible by a changed societal matrix and perception as well as economic globalization; however, women are often the targets of multifaceted retaliation and disincentives due to concerns about the free play of discriminatory attitudes and prejudicial mindsets.

The times in the past when women were viewed as weak, dependent, and subservient to males ought to be forgotten. The purpose of the program is to introduce learners to the idea of gender justice. The program will concentrate on comprehending the laws, its procedural complexities, and judicial decisions aimed at boosting the position of women in society, ranging from the realm of criminal law to laws protecting safety at the workplace, notably sexual harassment.
